blockade. It has been steadily increased as every account, official and unofficial, of the internal condition of Germany shows, the internal condition of Germany shows, and it is false and foolish to represent the blockade as being an ineffective sham. It is effective, and it isome ways remarkably effective. It is, nevertheless, true that in other respects it is not nearly so effective as it might be, and ought to be. By progressive stages our blockade policy has now reached this point—that neutral countries contiguous to Germany may import goods only through some body policy has now reached this point—that neutral countries contiguous to Germany may import goods only through some body representing either one particular trade or the whole commerce of the country. Agreements have been concluded with such thus are again becoming favourable for trusts in Holland, Denmark, Norway. Sweden, and Switzerland. In theory the device is excellent. In practice, unhappily, it is proving to be largely a failure; for very many of the neutral traders concerned do not observe the terms of the agreement. If this is the manner in which neutral traders concerned to not observe the terms of the agreement. If this is the manner in which neutral traders concerned to not observe the terms of the agreement. What those measures should be it is not within our province to suggest. An obvious expedient is to limit imports strictly to the proved domestic requirements of the country in question. If the "leakage" to the enemy still continued, the neutral people, who would then go short, could probably find their own means of stopping it. We are less concerned. Such an event must arouse widespread doubt whether the contributed improvement in the coordination of the Alliicd Staffs is, in fact, a reality, or, at least, whether it has resulted in the development of plans to meet all emergencies in the Balkans. We can scarcely suppose that it has been coldly decided to leave our smallest Ally to its fate. Whatever may be the explanation of it, the abandonment of that small country by its powerful Allies must have an extremely bad moral effect throughout the neutral world. There are in the Alliince four great European Powers and three small States—Belgium.

The letters taken on prisoners in the battle of Champagne, towards the end of September last, bore eloquent testimony to the everincreasing pressure of the economic blockaide on the German people. The impression made by these letters, from which I quoted at some length in a recent despatch, is more than confirmed by letters taken from the prisoners recently captured on the Hartmannsweller, kopf. Several thousand of these letters have failen into the possession of the French, and in all of them one finds the same perpetual wail as to the dearness of living on the part of the families at home, and of utter weariness with the war on the part of both soldiers and their families.

WINDSOR, FRIDAY NIGHT.

Excellent as was the racing at Windsor to-day, to-morrow's programme is not at all less interesting; especially so in the case of the steeplechases, two of which have attracted several horses of average Grand National class. It is a really good card from every point of view. My fancies are appended:—
Maiden Hurdle—Michigan or Spearproot.
Club Steeplechase—Les Ormes.
Saturday Hurdle—If It.
Cattle Steeplechase—Limerock.
Englefield Hurdle—Son o' Melton.
Burnham Steeplechase—Ally Stoper.

What is required is extra forethought and effort beyond what is usual, and if these are given, I feel sure that in many similar instances which arise time can be saved and output increased. I feel we should one and all think as hard as we can, and say as much as we can, and so, by fulfilling our obligations to our country and our duty as co-partners, do our share to bring this terrible war to a carly and successful conclusion.

The matter was then fully discussed by the co-partners present, and the Chairman submitted the following resolution to the most of their own running on the eanal because of the can be can be compared to the compared to the other summons. No appearance.

DEAN'S GRANGE BURIAL BOARD. Mr. J. J. Kennedy, Vice Chairman, presided yesterday at the meeting of the Dean's drange Burial Board. Arising out of the financial business Mr. J. P. McCabe criticised the Board's method of keeping the accounts.

The Chairman said their method had so far proved satisfactory, and the Local Government Board auditor had said nothing against it, although only the day before he had audited the accounts. If Mr. McCabe had a better method he would receive a notice of motion.

The Chairman said he knew that all their employes were well satisfied, and were also a hard working lot of men.

The Registrar, Mr. J. J Dunne, said that the greatest amity existed amongst the men under him.

A yote of condolence with the Registrar on the death of his sister-in-law, Mrs. Patk. Dunne, of Kilkemy, was passed.

CHARGE OF STEALING POSTAL LETTERS.

"THE BLACK HAND GANG,"
Several months ago "a Scarlet Dagger Gang"—a number of youths with a propensity of damaging property—caused a sensation in the Ballymena district. Four pensity for damaging property—caused a sensation in the Ballymena district. Four boys, who described themselves as the "Black Hand Gang," were before the magistrates in the Beffast Police Court to-day, charged with breaking, into the spindle factory of George Purdy and Charles Parchen, at 22 Sydney street, West Belfast, and stealing two rules, for penknives, and Is. 11d. in money. District Inspector Redmond prosecuted, and Mr. John Graham defended two of the juveniles.

Constable Greenaway gave evidence as to the arrest of the accused. Amongst other developments that came to light was one relating to the origin of the gang. One of the town office, Old Lodge road, said that when he was office, Old Lodge road, said that when he was office, Old Lodge road, said that when he was questioning one of the boys—two of them had offered tools in pledge—Surgener rushed at him.

Mr. John Gray, R.M., announced that Surgenor, who had promised to join the Navy, would be placed under a probation officer for six months. The more juvenile offenders were discharged with a caution.

OLD AGE PENSIONERS' DEATHS.

At inquest was held by the City Coroner to-day relative to the death of two did age pensioners—Rose Ann Callaghan (79) and Ellen Hon. the Recorder and a jury. Thomas Kelly and Free Corone by the Little and Grove (20)—who were found dead in the burning house, 28 Little May street.

Dr. M'Society, Donagal Pass, stated that both Ead expired through being overcome by heat and suffication.

Finding in accordance with the medical evidence, the jury attributed the fire to an unknown cause. They highly commended Constant May a street of the Corone and his promptness, and added that but for his breaking into the hours and rescuing another woman, named Stewart, ebe would probably have been suffocated also.
